

Professor Zimbardo has an extremely informative web site with slides and commentary and discussion questions based on his 1971 Stanford experiment. Please go to this site: <http://www.zimbardo.com/zimbardo.html> .

Then you will have to click on Prison Experiment

You can go through the entire unit, but I want you to play special attention to the sections on Arrival and Guards.

Arrival mentions how the prisoners were humiliated. What obvious but important comparison can you make to the concentration camp experience?

Guards has a section on Asserting Authority with references to the counting of prisoners and to forcing prisoners to do push-ups. What comparisons can you draw to the concentration camp experience?

The web site includes a button Discussion Questions. There are 16 questions. Choose three questions which you find most interesting and answer them in a short, but well-developed paragraph.
